Red

"For lips, red is everywhere," says Terry Barber, Mac's director of makeup artistry. "But it's slipped-on and effortless with a blurred line. I call it 'bed red!'"

Bronze

From New York to Milan via London, sun-kissed is definitely in. Makeup pro Charlotte Tilbury says, "It's a naturally bronzed look: swirl bronzer on cheekbones, temples and forehead."

It's all about light-diffused pastels for spring. We loved the watery-blue eyes created by Tom Pecheux at Badgley Mischka. "Something you feel you could dive into," he says.

Where's skincare headed?

Bespoke is the buzzword on everyone's lips. "The focus now is interactive online questionnaires and personalisation," says Joanna Shiers of trend agency Stylus. "French brand Codage (Mycodage.com) is trailblazing with an online diagnosis tool and made-to-measure products delivered, stamped with your initials, within a week." On the high street, expect skin bars such as California-based Skin Laundry (Skinlaundry.com): 10-minute bespoke laser and light facials designed to be as fuss-free as dropping off your washing. In UK clinics, the goal is radiance. "There's a backlash against cookie-cutter forehead freezing," says dermatologist Dr Sam Bunting. "The little details matter less when your 'canvas' is glowing. It's a chic way forward for 2014."

THE fragrances we want NOW

1 Carine Roitfeld. Word on the street is that the former editor-in-chief of Vogue Paris is close to releasing her own 'very Carine' scent.

2 Tory Burch. The first fragrance from this hot designer will be hitting stores in February. Get ready for vintage-luxe packaging and a 'tomboy meets feminine' feel.

3 Balmain. Our perfume spies tell us the new Balmain fragrance (February in Harrods) is 'very Rihanna, very rock 'n' roll, very sell-out'. >

HOUSE OF HOLLAND

3 WAYS TO DO YOUR NAILS NOW

1

Squareletto

Celebrity nail artist Sophy Robson debuted the new nail shape at the House Of Holland show. "It's a longer pointed nail with the tip squared off," says Sophy.

2

Floating nail art

"This means sheer nude nails with some kind of minimal detail over the top. It's going to be massive," says Katie Hughes, Butter London's global ambassador.

Pastel

Hot on the heels of Burberry's starry S/S14 London show, you can buy the very same bold pastels as worn by Cara, Edie and co on the runway. (January at Burberry.com).

The future smells... happy

According to Micaela Braccacini of International Flavors & Fragrances, fragrance is now more about lifestyle and values than age or income. "The big trend is optimism – perfumes that evoke the positive side of life, such as Lancôme La Vie Est Belle and the Miss Dior advertising. It's an answer to the difficult times we're living through." Look out for vintage vibes and warm, leathery tones. Nicola de Burlet of fragrance distributor Kenneth Green Associates confirms the top notes appearing in its 2014 launches are the rather retro rose, musk, vanilla and orange blossom.

Fuss-free ombre: Jessica Alba

Our new hair crush

"I'm foreseeing a new style of ombre, which is multiple hues instead of the harshness of dip-dye," says Josh Wood, hair-colour expert. "Wella Color.id (salon only) allows for seamless blending, no foils, less time in the chair and a really premium result."

Self-tanning: we're still at it

St.Tropez is working on a new, luxe way to apply self-tan, and Clarins has a 'made-to-measure' formula arriving in April. Tanning guru James Read will launch a bronzing serum and anti-ageing tan early in 2014. As for how dark you go, James has spoken: "Following Fashion Week's love affair with the '70s comes the Blush Tan. Think Jerry Hall (pictured below)... a rich, dark Californian tan worn with long hair." It's modernised with warm peach undertones.
